Singer, producer, and composer Steve Tyrell was born in Texas and grew up in Houston's 5th Ward. As a teenager, he performed in local R & B bands and at 19 he landed a job as a staff producer in New York at indie label Scepter Records. Tyrell was soon promoted to head of A & R and promotions and began to work with some of America's greatest songwriters; Burt Bacharach, Hal David, Gerry Goffin, Barry Mann, and Carole King. After recruiting fellow Texan BJ Thomas, Tyrell produced his hits, "Hooked on a Feeling," and "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head." In Los Angeles he co-founded Tyrell - Mann, a music-supervision company, and continued to produce Grammy-Award winning songs for movies and also music for television. He returned to singing in 1991, with a cameo performance of "The Way You Look Tonight," for the movie Father of the Bride. That eventually led to three albums of standards and a Christmas album, A New Standard (1999), Standard Time (2001), This Time of the Year (2002), and This Guy's in Love (2003).
